Central Dallas Ministries (CDM) is on a mission to defeat poverty in Dallas' inner-city neighborhoods. CDM fights poverty with a multi-prong strategy and a variety of support services. It operates medical and legal clinics, a food pantry, children's education programs, and workforce development programs. CDM serves more than 60,000 inner-city residents every year.

In response to the drastic shortage of affordable housing in Dallas, CDM added this to its list of services. After creating its own community development corporation, Central Dallas CDC, they reached out to PCG for financing of the Ashby Street Project, a 21-unit low-income rental housing development. Working together, CDM and PCG made their goal a reality and today, Ashby Commons provides affordable homes to low-income families.

PCG Loan Amount: $100,000
